Latest update

SWIFT has announced the discontinuation of its "In-flow translation" service. In-flow translation manages the translation, delivery, and routing of legacy MT message formats, derived from information received on incoming SWIFT ISO (MX) messages. This ensures that back-office systems, which are not yet ISO 2022 compliant, can still receive and process MT messages effectively. It's important to note that SWIFT will not offer an equivalent transformation service for sent (read : received) traffic. However, bank-to-corporate flows will remain unaffected, for now, and will continue to use the mt format beyond November 2025.
